

✙ Order of Tropars and Kondaks at the Little Entrance of the Divine Liturgy

At the Little Entrance (Малий Вхід) of the Divine Liturgy, according to the Typikon, we sing:

- the tropar and the kondak of the day,
- the tropar and the kondak of the of the church,
- the tropar and the kondak of the of the Menaion (i.e., of the feast or of the saint).

The daily tropar and kondak are the tropar and kondak of the day of the week. Each day of the week has a special commemoration, and thus, its own tropar and kondak.

On Mondays we commemorate the Angelic Powers.

On Tuesdays — St. John the Baptist.

On Wednesdays and Fridays — the Holy Cross.

On Thursdays — the Holy Apostles and St. Nicholas.

On Saturdays — all the saints and the departed.

On Sundays — the Holy Resurrection.

Each tone of the Oktoikh has its own tropar and kondak of the Resurrection. The tropar and kondak of the Menaion ("of the saint" or "of the feast") are the tropar and the kondak of the saint or of the feast which falls on that specific day of the calendar. The tropar and kondak "of the church" is the tropar and the kondak of the feast of the Lord or of the Theotokos, or of the saint to whom the church has been dedicated.

All the tropars are to be sung first, and then, all the kondaks. Hymns in honour of the Lord are to be sung first, those in honour of the Theotokos — in second place; and finally, those in honour of saints.

The singing of tropars and kondaks usually concludes with the singing of a kondak in honour of the Theotokos, in the sixth tone: Protection of Christians — or by another kondak, as prescribed by the Typikon.

The precise order of tropars and kondaks depends on whether the church was dedicated to the Lord, to the Theotokos, or to a saint.
